LATOxLATO's metaphysical wallpapers for Inkiostro Bianco.

Urban visions blending architecture and dreams.

The design studio of Francesco Breganze de Capnist and Virginia Valentini collaborates for the first time with the Italian brand specializing in artistic decorative wallcoverings.

The architect duo creates a series of evocative wallpapers for the Flow line of Inkiostro Bianco.

JUNE 2023 - LAToxLATO makes its debut in wallpaper design by collaborating for the first time with Inkiostro Bianco, an Italian brand specializing in decorative coverings that bridge art, architecture, and design. The result is a series of evocative metaphysical wallpapers. Urban visions that envelop spaces in a rarefied, dreamlike, and yet dynamic dimension.

Bossage and Coffer Mania collections, part of the Flow line

It's an original interpretation and contribution to Inkiostro Bianco's Flow line, characterized by fluidity, the rhythm of shapes and colors, to break boundaries and rigidity that often compress us in today's life. "We are thrilled about this collaboration with a company like Inkiostro Bianco, an authentic laboratory of ideas that has given us full confidence and great creative freedom. It is as if we have been able to paint our vision on a blank canvas. On whatever scale we work, from the building to the furniture complement and now the wallpaper, we love to combine the architectural sign with a metaphysical atmosphere," tell Virginia Valentini and Francesco Breganze de Capnist, founders of LATOxLATO.

Four designs created by LATOxLATO, within the Flow line

The common thread running through the four designs created by the studio within the Flow line is the reflection on the relationship between interior and exterior in architecture. The graphics of Archscape and Metropolis evoke the city from the perspective of those who prefer to admire it from a distance, within the comfort of their own home. Volumes, stairs, windows, lights, and shadows projected onto the walls of buildings. A hectic yet almost mystical and dreamy metropolis.

Instead, Bossage and Coffer Mania invite closer inspection. It is like strolling through urban streets and, drawn to the light emanating from a room, fantasizing about the environment and the people who inhabit it, allowing the imagination to wander in an intangible and floating dimension.

As with every LATOxLATO project, the research on color is essential, with colors designed for for cross-use of the wallpapers in both domestic and contract spaces. Refined cool and warm tones create chiaroscuro effects. Each design is available in various color variants, making it easy to fit into any type of environment and harmonize with different interior styles.

“LATOxLATO’s contribution to the Flow line is very interesting due to the originality of the designs and the striking effect of the urban and metaphysical-inspired graphics. In our work, we always aim to evoke emotions. Flow was created to provide backgrounds that allow each individual to express their own way of being, and the collaboration with LATOxLATO has enriched the line with exciting and sophisticated beauty,” concludes Lorenzo Bragato, Commercial Director and co-owner of Inkiostro Bianco.

Notes to Editors

LATOxLATO

Virginia Valentini and Francesco Breganze de Capnist are Italians by birth, architects by training, and travelers by vocation. They are not only professional partners but also life partners. As husband and wife, they share a profound creative affinity and a relentless pursuit of exploration. In 2016, they opened their first professional studio in New York, where they embarked on numerous interior architecture projects. The transatlantic experience sparked their desire to create designs that transcend conventional boundaries. However, their love for their Italian roots, the craftsmanship ingrained in the “Made in Italy” tradition, and the rich artistic and architectural heritage of their homeland proved to be an irresistible call. This inspired them to return to Italy and establish LATOxLATO, a design workshop that encompasses a wide spectrum of endeavors, from large-scale architectural projects to the finest product details. At the core of LATOxLATO’s philosophy is the aspiration to create contemporary designs with a modern approach, achieved through a harmonious interplay between different art forms and an ongoing dialogue between art and architecture.
