

ASHLEY BOTTEN
DESIGN

A flexible work environment for the changing needs of a growing film production company.

The boardroom faces onto Ossington Avenue, one of Toronto's most vibrant streets for independent fashion retail, restaurants and bars. Italian sliding glass walls with a linen inset provide privacy without blocking out natural light.

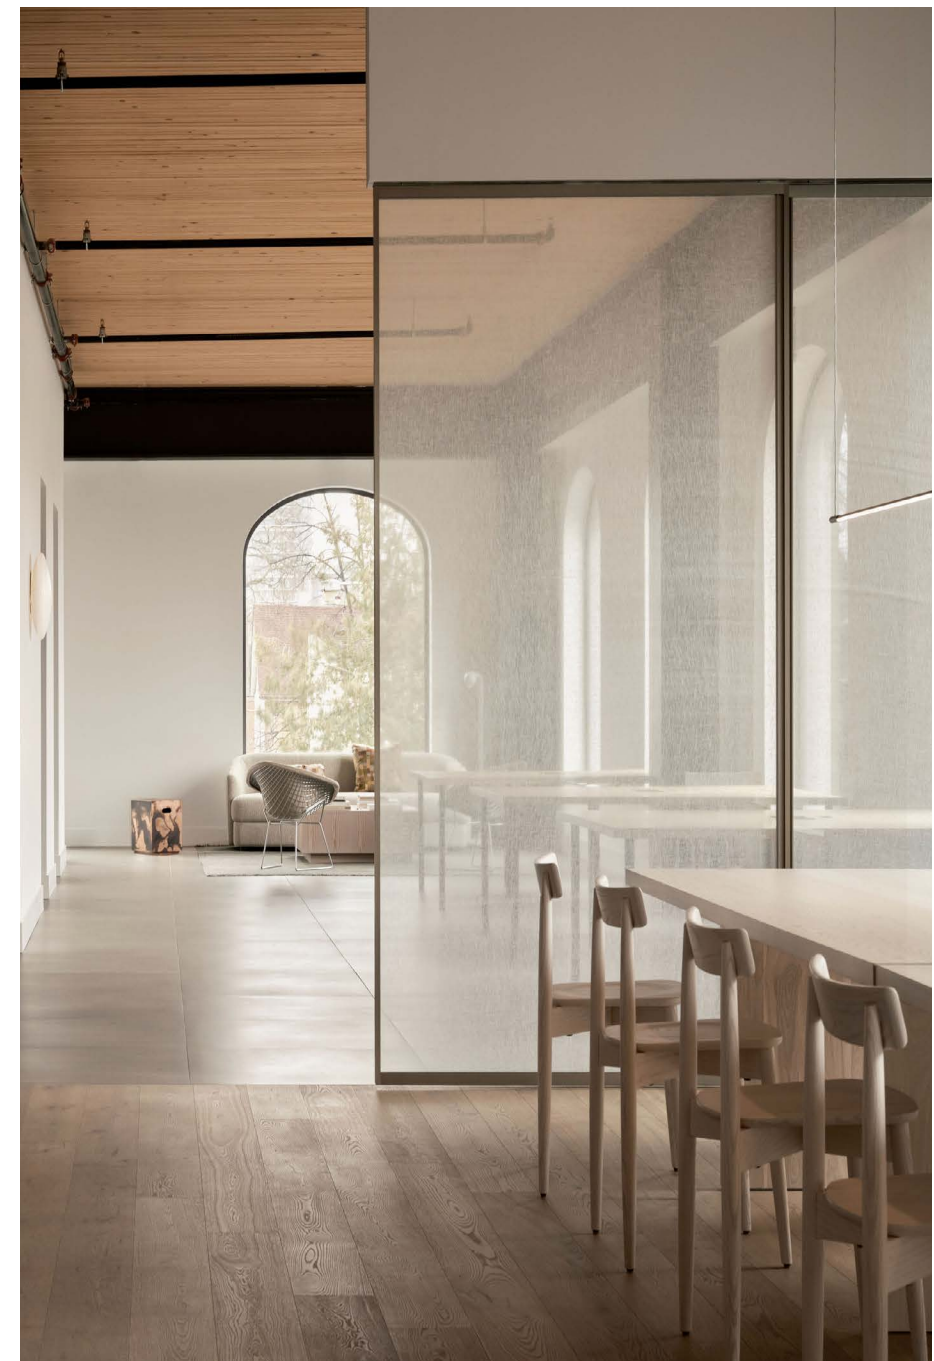

Diffused lighting gives the studio a sense of calmness and warmth. The reception desk (left) and seating area are located far from the studio entrance to allow visitors to be immersed in the environment while waiting.

A communal harvest table, surrounded by sixteen Lara chairs in bleached ash, serves as a workspace, meeting area, dining spot, or for laying out a spectacular party charcuterie.
