THE STUDIO

In 2025, Urbanjobs received the Jury's Special Award for Best Young Interior Architecture Office from the world-renowned Architizer and Longlisted as the Interior Design Firm of the Year by Archello. The studio approaches space not merely as a form but as a holistic experience shaped by material, texture, and light—completed through user interaction. Since its founding in 2018, Urbanjobs has been honored with numerous prestigious international and national awards, including Reddot, IF, Architizer, German Design Awards, FX, Maison Française and Elle Decoration.

Urbanjobs has developed a design philosophy that meticulously layers sensory components to construct atmosphere. In every project, from door handles to custom furniture, each element is designed to build a distinctive spatial language unique to the studio.

As Urbanjobs' founder Murat Dede states:

"The true power and value of design lie in its ability to create an experience that activates our senses. Design is not merely about form; it is a proposition about how a space will be lived, how it will make us feel, and how it will mature over time."

Today, some of Istanbul's most notable gastronomic destinations—Batard, Zula, Momo Bebeköy, Momo Beach, Scalla, Esca, and the main concepts of Saku and Clove, among others—have been brought to life through Urbanjobs' design approach. The studio's portfolio also includes international collaborations with globally recognized brands such as Alan Yau, Obicà, Butterfly, Johnnie Walker, and Renault.

Beyond hospitality, Urbanjobs has created retail, residential, and office environments for major brands such as Beymen, Getir, İş Bankası, Assembly Buildings, Kolektif House, Doğuş, and Nef, shaping unique identities for each. With over 50,000 square meters of office design experience and a strong presence in retail, luxury residential, and hospitality projects, Urbanjobs produces distinctive works across all fields of interior architecture.

THE BODRUM EDITION

Perched on the dramatic coastline of Bodrum, The Bodrum EDITION is conceived as a seamless extension of its landscape. Rather than imposing a distinct architectural gesture, the project embraces the site's natural topography, Mediterranean vegetation, and expansive sea views, creating an atmosphere defined by calmness, light, and understated luxury. The design is rooted in simplicity. A restrained palette of pale stone, textured plaster, natural timber, and soft fabrics establishes a timeless architectural language that allows the surrounding landscape to remain the focal point. Carefully framed views, layered terraces, and generous outdoor living spaces blur the boundary between interior and exterior, reinforcing a continuous dialogue with the sea. The restaurant is positioned as an elevated garden overlooking the bay. Surrounded by dense planting and illuminated by custom-designed lanterns, the space balances intimacy and openness. Warm lighting, natural materials, and a meticulously ordered layout create a refined yet relaxed dining experience that reflects the spirit of contemporary Mediterranean hospitality. Throughout the project, architecture, landscape, lighting, and furniture are treated as a single composition. Every element is designed to contribute to an environment that feels effortless, where luxury emerges through proportion, materiality, and attention to detail rather than excess. The result is a destination that captures the essence of Bodrum—sunlight, sea, vegetation, and hospitality—translated into a contemporary spatial experience that is both elegant and enduring.

At the heart of the project is the restaurant terrace, positioned within a lush Mediterranean garden overlooking the water. Defined by custom-designed furniture, carefully curated planting, and a series of sculptural lanterns, the space is organized as a landscape of dining experiences rather than a conventional restaurant layout. Generous seating arrangements encourage lingering, while subtle shifts in level and vegetation create privacy without compromising openness. Lighting is treated as an architectural material. During the evening, warm illumination transforms the terraces into a series of softly glowing rooms set within the landscape. Rather than highlighting individual objects, the lighting strategy focuses on atmosphere, reinforcing the project's quiet and understated character. The relationship between architecture and nature extends beyond visual connections. Existing vegetation was preserved wherever possible and supplemented with native Mediterranean species, allowing the landscape to mature naturally over time. Olive trees, cypresses, and dense planting soften architectural edges and strengthen the feeling that the project belongs to its environment.
